PROFILE

*Jonathan Luke Austin is a political sociologist exploring the ontologies of violence. His expertise focuses on social theory and philosophy, the prevention of political violence, Middle Eastern politics, and the relations between art, literature, and world politics. Presently, Austin leads the Violence Prevention (VIPRE) Initiative (www.vipre.ch). The Initiative is a multi-year and multi-researcher project designed by Austin and funded by the Swiss National Science Foundation which investigates novel sociological approaches for the prevention of war crimes and human rights violations. Austin is also associate editor of the journal New Perspectives and a member of the executive committee of the Science, Technology, and Art in IR (STAIR) section of the International Studies Association (ISA). His work is published or forthcoming in European Journal of International Relations, International Political Sociology, Review of International Studies, European Journal of International Security, Security Dialogue, in numerous edited volumes, and elsewhere.*
